FROM THE FREDERICKTOWN HERALD.

COL. BUTLER's TRIAL.

DEFENCE.

Mr. President, and

Gentlemen of the Court---

In one observation, indeed, employed for that purpose by the General, he has reminded us of a fact, which may serve strongly to confirm what I have already advanced. I mean where he remarks that 'the measure has been sanctioned by the first military characters and recommended by the ablest generals who have lived.'—True! for not only the first military character, but the first character who has ever lived, I believe once sanctioned a similar measure: that is, if I recollect right, our revered Washington at some period of the revolutionary war once recommended to the troops to have their hair cut, I do not precisely remember on what account, but we may be sure it was on a proper and expedient one. But General Washington did not pretend to any thing more than to recommend; he did not affect to issue any positive order for this measure, nor did he ever arrest any officer, and assemble a court martial to try him for disobedience. Yet with all due deference, I presume it no disparagement to believe, that no man surely ever had a better understanding of his own duty and powers, that no man ever knew better how to perform the one and exercise the other, and that in a right sense of his own true dignity of character he cannot even at this time be surpassed. An irresistable inference then arises, particularly considering the urgency of that crisis, that the immortal hero and honored patriot, whose soul now rests in Heaven, but whose memory will ever live, and whose faithful judgment will ever be respected, did not himself conceive that a commander had a right to enjoin any order for that purpose, except such as was merely recommendatory. And it is in this light at best and in none more strong that we can now possibly consider the order of the 30th April, 1801. As a recommendatory order, therefore, it becomes one about which every officer was at liberty to use his own discretion; which at pleasure he might or might not regard according to his own feelings, the sentiment and circumstances that peculiarly influenced him; and for a non-compliance with which he is answerable to himself, but cannot possibly be punishable as for disobodience, since a refusal to pursue a mere recommendation is neither in fact nor in contemplation of military law any disobedience at all. In this opinion you must pardon me, gentlemen, for imagining that the general has too much intelligence not sincerely to agree with us. You must pardon me for suggesting that he has rather betrayed the same opinion both in the time and manner of my arrest, and in the formation of the additional charges presented against me. Two years had elapsed since the date of this order when he tho't fit to revive the subject and for the first time as it respected me to dictate acquiescence. But as I did not conceal my determination on this head, mistrustful probably of his authority to subdue that determination, or perhaps well knowing that he really had no such authority, there might be the greater necessity to call in the aid of other complaints, and to hold over me a fancied rod of terror speciously applied as from a difficult, extensive and remote field of accountability—the combined influence of which it might be calculated would effect that obedience to the order in view, which the want of legal validity in the order itself had not been able to effect. I do not impeach the justice of this policy, and still less would I venture to reflect on its mover: But I barely mention it to you as a probable truth, from which you are capable of drawing your own deductions. If such was the policy, however, gentlemen, as it did not then succeed on me, so I hope now after a careful scrutiny of my conduct arraigned in the other specifications no reason will be left why it should succeed with you. To that scrutiny I willingly submit myself, not with fear and trembling, gentlemen, because so long in the habits of plain dealing it would be out of character at this time of life to say that I tremble, when in fact I cannot but feel bold in my own innocence and confident in my own rectitude. Yet I will confess that having hitherto in times more trying passed thro' my career of duty without reproach, I had never calculated on being reduced in the downhill of my days to the predicament of this moment reduced gentlemen, to the mortifying condition of being obliged to answer, as for disobedience of order, in a trust, wherein it is no arrogance to say I know myself rather entitled to thanks for a correct and successful discharge of duty with the most complete obedience. But the calculations of man are vain, and the pride of his hope is every where perishable! I have no right to expect an exemption from the common lot of human disappointment, and I therefore proceed at once to put myself on trial under the second specification of 'disobedience of order' the words following—

2d. 'For disobedience of the order of the president of the United States communicated to him (the Colonel) through the regular constitutional channel by the inspector of the army, on the 9th of April, 25th May, and 8th June, 1802, as will appear from the letters of the Colonel, addressed to the secretary of war, May 18th (meaning the 19th) and to the commanding general the 7th and 19th August, 1802, and by other testimony.'

On the manner in which this specification is made, it might justly be remarked, gentlemen, that it is in fact no specification at all—that it merely charges in general terms a disobedience of order communicated in certain letters referred to, to be proved by other letters also referred to, when in truth all those letters together contain a great multiplicity and variety of points, not one of which is particularly designated; and that therefore the specification wants all the preciseness which could be the only use of specification in informing me to what my defence is to be applied, and in enabling the court to make their judgment. But I shall not shelter myself behind any evasion, and I shall therefore let it be understood, that it is meant to charge me with disobedience in not organising the troops under my direction agreeably to certain orders, and in proceeding to visit my family in Pennsylvania without sufficient leave. On a charge like the first (on which the second also will be found entirely to depend) it would surely not be unreasonable gentlemen, that the burden of proof as in all other cases should rest on the accusing party—and it will surely be considered both fortunate and favorable, that there is not only an absolute want of any serious proof whatever on that side against me, but that I should be able on my part to adduce ample testimony that my conduct has been perfectly correct and blameless. This ability I deem no small share of good fortune; for you must all be sensible gentlemen, from the nature of military service in general, from the peculiar nature of that service I was ordered to perform; from the length of time it necessarily took, from the different movements, the various correspondence, and the hurried communications it occasioned, as well as from a nameless variety of circumstances attending the execution of every new and difficult system, that any honest man in my situation might be innocent, and yet under so broad a charge might not have preserved every evidence to prove himself so liberal in his intercourse he relies on being treated with reciprocal fairness. Just in his own dealings, he prepares not for injustice—Guileless himself he suspects not design in others. And thus 'good easy man,' while regardless of himself he may be devoting his whole time and attention to his public duty, it may turn out that he has thus been neglecting or depriving himself of the very means to repel a subsequent accusation for breach of duty and been putting into the hands of his adversary, the very weapons which are afterwards used to destroy him. This happily, however, is not exactly my fate. Happily it has been in my power to produce on this occasion every paper and every document which it could be thought incumbent on me to produce for my justification. They have been read to you and filed, gentlemen, from No. 1 to 30 inclusive, besides other writings, the map and rolls not marked. Taken together they form a chain of unexceptionable and irresistible testimony in my behalf, without leaving any thing more necessary for me to do, I humbly apprehend even if this can be necessary, than to shew in a few words the general connection of the whole, and to direct your observation to some of the most prominent links.

By letter from the inspector of the army bearing date the 9th of April, 1802, I was instructed to organize the troops, mentioned in the following clause of an inclosed order from the secretary of war bearing date the 29th of March ult. within the periods and agreeably to the principles established therein, to wit.

'Those (meaning the troops) in Tennessee and at Wilkinsonville on or before the 30th April, those on the Mississippi on or before the 15th of May, and those on the Mobile on or before the 31st of May, 1802.'

This order and the letter [illegible] explained, 2, By proceeding [illegible] 3, which is my answer of May the 4th to the secretary of war it will be perceived, gentlemen, that the order for organization so far as relates to the periods limited had defeated itself or rather that when received by me it was impossible to be performed, the time as to the first organization having already elapsed altogether, and as to the others so much of it having elapsed as to prove necessarily too short—that is, the order had not reached me till the 21st of May, which was two days after the time at which it declared that the organization was to be completed in Tennessee and at Wilkinsonville, only thirteen days before the same completion was to take place on the Mississippi, and left but 29 days for the organization of the troops on the Mobile. To this impossibility which you will fully comprehend from knowing the nature of the distances between these several posts, if you add gentlemen that the pay master, without whom nothing could be done, did not arrive at the Cantonment till the 18th day of May, three days after the period of organization allowed for fort Adams, it must be admitted that I can only be accountable to shew that the organizations were all completed as soon and as well as they could be, without being tied up to the periods before specified or to any limited time whatever. Neither gentlemen in investigating the subject, are you to consider me confined to the letter of my first instructions, because it was found impracticable to execute the order in all its parts in consequence of a want of means and of innumerable difficulties, which were detailed in my letter to the Inspector of the 4th of May, No 4 (and which are further stated in my letter of the 12th, No 8.) in reference to which, the order of the 9th of April was afterwards softened down, and I was completely left at large, by another letter from the Inspector of May the 25th, No 6, containing the following passage—

"It was impossible at this distance, and with the limited view we had of the situation of the several detachments serving on the Ohio and Tennessee, to prescribe specifically for every case and circumstance which should arise in carrying into effect a new organization of the troops and of course nothing was said on the several points mentioned in your letter of the 4th inst. thereby leaving to you the exercise of a sound discretion, to obviate existing difficulties.'

Under the confidence thus reposed, Gentlemen, and the latitude thus given. Directing your attention to the organization in Tennessee, which is the first in order, I presume before you would convict me of disobedience, you would require it to be demonstrated by my prosecutor, that in the course of my proceedings thereon I ever did depart from the exercise of a sound discretion. Such an attempt would indeed be curious, because it was not his discretion but my own discretion by which I was to be directed; and wherever I did the best according to my own 'discretion' and did not wilfully err, I certainly stand excused even if it could be proved that I was at any time mistaken in judgement. But even this cannot be proved—For I think you will be satisfied, that I proceeded in the organization in Tennessee with all the dispatch and regularity practicable; in evidence of which, I beg leave to refer the court to duplicates of my orders to the several officers on that station. Nos 9, 10, 14 15 &c. and the two muster rolls of the 22d of May and 2nd of June 1802, which have been laid before you. Having done this, I was next to attend to the disposition of the troops so organised, agreeably to further arrangements in a letter immediately from the Secretary of War, of April the 16th, No 12, which in some respects indeed hanged and superceded the first orders.

Alexandria Daily Advertiser.

TUESDAY, APRIL 10.

We anticipate, without much presumption, that the nominations of President and Vice President, made by the republican members of Congress will be universally acceptable to the friends of liberty throughout the union. It would be a work of supererogation to attempt any eulogium upon the political deportment of THOMAS JEFFERSON. It may suffice to say that before his country called him to the exercise of the first office in its gift, he was emphatically denominated the man of the people; and that in the discharge of the high duties of his station, he has demonstrated that the honourable epithet was not misapplied. Power has not corrupted a heart, or impaired an understanding, both of which have through a chequered life been actively engaged in rendering services to his fellow men. Many individuals have distinguished themselves in advocating the liberties of their country before they attained the high political places; but few have preserved, in the possession of power, and unabated zeal for the public welfare. Be it the characteristick distinction of Thomas Jefferson that his political PRINCIPLES HAVE NEVER CHANGED; and that in power, as well as out of power, his patriotism has shone with equal splendor.

(Nat. Intel.)

Impudence is a coat of mail.

It is a remark of Machiavel, and it is true, that no scheme of government concentrates power into so few hands as a democracy. The many are indeed amused, and, to borrow a vulgar but significant phrase, humbugged with the no

...tion that they rule. They have a farce acted ...ever often in which they seem to rule, but ...while the shadow of power is yielded to them ...with all possible parade, the substance is kept by ...the artful leaders for themselves. It is impossible the rabble should actually rule, but their vanity is extremely concerned and sufficiently gratified in the pantomime shew of sovereignty, while the demagogues usurp every prerogative of power and push it in the name of the people to every extremity of outrage and abuse. This has happened a thousand times; in fact nothing else has ever happened in democracies—Yet the fond rabble affect to wonder at any person who impudently presumes to suppose it should ever happen at all. For the people to be their own worst enemies and to be cheated by favorites, and generally the most ambitious scoundrels are their favorites, out of their liberties, they deem impossible.

Accordingly these impossible things take place very quietly, without suspicion or resistance, and the people continue to sing about liberty as so many mocking birds or parrots would in their gilt cages after they have lost it. We have in the United States, besides Mr. Jefferson, ten or twenty very adroit dupe makers—and the people meaning always as the Jacobins do the rabble work as kindly we must confess in their hands, as clay in the hands of the potter; and they are accordingly working up into vessels of dishonor. For behold the republican (we spit at the abuse of that name)—the republican members have nominated a President and Vice President. In form then, as well as in fact we are in the power of an oligarchy, a fate to which every Democracy is destined. It is the first stage in the journey; the few govern a short time; then one—one Consul for life, & his sword is his sceptre. We have got on beyond Robespiereism almost to Robespiereism and what remains of our race we shall soon run.

Now who can resist this nomination. What is it but a combination of the Government and its hangers on, to keep themselves in office. The triumvirate of Antony, Octavius and Lepidus, in like manner, disposed of the Roman Empire and the elections went on in form by the choice of the Roman people, with as pretty an outside shew and as delusive a shew of liberty as our's will; and with just as little of the substance. For who can resist this combination, this conspiracy. Even a Democrat who should hesitate would be proscribed and hunted down. But a Federalist would be duelled or prosecuted for a libel who opposes. Yet many thousands of democrats will think in their hearts that Mr. Jefferson is not the fittest candidate. They will whisper, but in a very low voice, he is a disgraced man. "Power has corrupted him" and he has dishonored his office by his mean duplicity and his persecuting malice. He hired Callender, he is the friend of Paine. He invited him over; he employed Philip Freneau, he wrote to Mazzei slandering Washington, he has written in his notes on Virginia about the Judiciary, and the power of a majority to oppress a minority, and in regard to the negroes and aliens, and navy and manufactures, every thing that he has contradicted since. If he did not act like a coward at Carter's mountain, he has acted in office with the vindictive cruelty of one in regard to his political opponents. The federalists from the bottom of their souls detest his hypocrisy; and every democrat knows that no man is more likely as President to embitter our party divisions and to make them irreconcileable. His sincerity, his courage, his revolutionary conduct, his connections in France, in this country—in short, whether we regard his principles or his want of them, there is not a more unfit man for president in the nation.

Read the account his printer, the hireling Smith, gives of his master, and say, men of honor, whatever your politics may be, is any King or Consul, or Bashaw, or Dey upon earth flattered more grossly or with a more brazen disregard for truth? he never changed his principles—it may answer as a defence to say he never had any. But surely it is in print that all he ever pretended to have he has either expressly disavowed or openly disregarded. Newspaper praise may dull his feelings against the point of newspaper satire; but there is a decision of the heart, there is a judgment of posterity; there is such a thing, as history to bear witness, and the record of his infamy will remain when he has lost, and his conscience has regained its office.

(Repertory.)

NEW YORK, April 5.

By the regular trading ship John Morgan, Howard arrived at this port yesterday, in 26 days from the Downs, we are enabled to lay before the readers of the Mercantile Advertiser, London news to the evening of the third of March, from papers to that date, with which Captain Howard has obligingly favoured us. The following articles are from the latest of these papers and comprise nearly the whole of what is politically interesting.

The King of England it appears was in a state of convalescence, when the John Morgan left London; and no attempt had been on the United Kingdom, by the French invaders.

LONDON, March 3.

The Bulletin shewn to the royal visitors at St. James's, who were very numerous, was briefly as follows:—

Queen's House, March 3.

"His Majesty is going on favourably."

Signed as before.

To this agreable information we are enabled to add, that reasonable hopes are entertained, that his Majesty will be able to resume the full exercise of his Royal functions in a few days. That is to say, such is the confident tone in the Ministerial circles.

Notwithstanding what was stated in most of the papers of yesterday, there is still some reason to believe that the Toulon squadron had sailed, and consequently, that it has been pursued, and attacked by Lord Nelson. The dispatches received from his Lordship on Wednesday, were dated as far back as the 20th of January.

Yesterday further accounts were received from the Noble Admiral of some days later date, brought by M. Falcon our late consul at Algiers who arrived on Tuesday at Falmouth in the Townshend packet from Lisbon. Mr. Falcon left Lord Lord Nelson cruizing off Toulon, the French force being then in harbour, consisting of ten sail of the line and several small vessels.—At Lisbon Mr. Falcon heard a report of their having sailed, but of this he did not encourage any belief.

It should appear from Mr. Falcon's return that the dispute with the Dey of Algiers remains at present unsettled.

Last night a rumour was once more circulated, of an insurrection having broke out in Paris, in consequence of the excessively high price of provisions, and an attempt having been made to assassinate the First consul. We merely mention this report as it reached us, without attaching to it much credit.

In the begining of Jan. Genoa, the capital of the Ligurian republic was closely blockaded by four frigates.

A number of Laguiran troops have been sent to reinforce the garrison of the Isle of Elba.

Fears are entertained at Gibraltar for the safety of several of the vessels that went out with the last convoy, the fleet, having been much scattered.

The Board of Admiralty have come to a determination of ordering 20 sail of the line to be immediately laid down in our several yards and to be built without loss of time, wisely judging that the crafty Corsican is using every exertion to repair his navy, whilst the indispensible necessity of blockading his ports, from Toulon to the Texel, must necessarily cause great wear and tear in our men of war.

The Courier de Londres of last night, states with a degree of confidence, that on the 12th ult. Madame Bonaparte went to the dock of the Invalids, at Paris, where, instead of being received with acclamations, she was assailed by the tumultous cries of the workmen, demanding bread and the arrears of their wages. The minister of the Marine who was present, with difficulty appeased the tumult, by a promise of the payment of eight franks to each of the workmen that evening. Madame Bonaparte is said to have been very much alarmed, and to have regained her carriage with some difficulty.

Provisions are excessively dear at Paris owing to the great demand for the troops. The Italians in the army have had much contention with the French soldiery, in consequence of which, the following letter is said to have been addressed to General Junot, commandant of the Corps d'Elite, of the army of England. "Tell the soldiers that I wish to call upon those of all nations to avenge the common cause of all; and that every auxillary corps should represent a people interested in our behalf, and offering up prayers for our success. In this grand enterprise, there should be no distinctions of French or Italians; no denominations but those of the enemies of England. Upon my arrival, let all these disputes be settled, that the army may present a grand whole, totally subjected to the will of its chief."

The Vendean departments, and those of the West, in general, are said to be in such a state of discontent, as to threaten a dangerous explosion.

VALUABLE FAMILY MEDICINES.

Just received direct from the Patentees, and for sale by JAMES KENNEDY, JUN.
DRUGGIST:
The following Valuable Medecines:

Dr. Rawson's Anti-Bilious and Stomachel Bitters,

Prepared by THOS. H. RAWSON,
Member of the Connecticut Medical Society.

THESE Bitters have undoubtedly had the most rapid sale of any Patent Medicine ever before discovered, and are justly appreciated for their singular and uncommon virtues for restoring weak and decayed constitutions, and all that train of complicated complaints so common in the spring and fall seasons, such as intermittant Fevers and Agues, long Autumnal Fevers, Dysenteries, &c. They are also a very pleasant Bitter for common use, and where they are known they have taken the place of and superceded the use of all other Bitters in public houses as well as in private families. Price 50 cents a box.

Dr. Lee's (Windham) Bilious Pills.

THE great sale and increasing demand for these valuable Pills for these 12 years past, speak their intrinsic worth. They have proved singularly efficacious in Bilious and Yellow Fevers, Jaundice, Head achs Dysenteries, Bilious Cholic, Costiveness, Female Complaints, &c.

The very great demand and high esteem in which these Pills are held throughout the United States and the West Indies, has induced several to counterfit them; the purchaser is requested to observe that the name of Saml. Lee, Jun. (the patentee) is affixed to each bill of directions, in his own hand writing, or they will not be genuine. Price 50 cents a box.

Dr. Rawson's Itch Ointment.

A certain and safe application for that disagreeable complaint called the ITCH. Price 42 cents a box.

Dr. Rawson's Anti Billious Pills, or Family Physic.

The extraordinary celebrity these Pills have gained, the universal demand for them and esteem in which they are held by medical men of the first eminence, are sufficient testimonials of their intrinsic worth. In great colds and sudden attacks of disorders, an early use of these Pills often produces the happiest effects, and taken once in 8 or 10 days in cases of Indigestion, headachs, dizziness, Pains in the stomach and bowels, dysenteries, diarrhœas, dropsies, &c. and a liberal use of my Anti Billious bitters in the intermediate time has relieved patients almost to a miracle. Price 25 cts. a box.

Thompson's Aromatic Tooth Paste.

For the Scurvy in the Teeth and Gums, and for whitening and preserving the teeth. It likewise takes off all disagreeable smells from the breath which generally arises from foul teeth and bad teeth. This paste is much in use, and highly esteemed by all those who value the preservation of their teeth, it may be applied at all times with the greatest safety. It is neatly put up in Pewter boxes with paper directions. Price 50 cts a box.

Dr. Rawson's Worm Powders.

A Medicine which for efficacy and safety in its operation stands unrivalled. The most authentic proofs and respectable authorities of its astonishing virtues, and surprising effects, in extreme and alarming cases of worms, may be seen at the place of sale. Price 50 cents a packet.

Dr. Cooleys Vegetable Elexir,
Or Cough Drops,

For Coughs, Colds, Asthmas, spitting of blood, and all diseases of the lungs. Its merits stands unrivalled. Price 50 cents a bottle.

Dr. Cooley's Rheumatic Pills,
Price 50 cents a box.

Hinkley's Infallible Remedy for the Piles.

Price 50 cents a box.

Very particular directions accompany each of these valuable medicines.

ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS REWARD.

RANAWAY from the subscriber on the 29th of October last, a negro man slave named about 20 years of age, five feet nine inches high straight limbed and well formed; said slave hath an impediment in his speech which prevents his, readily replying to a question. He commonly wears ear-rings. He took with him a variety of good cloathing, a description of which is unnecessary, as it is probable he has changed them. He has been frequently seen about town since he absconded, and in all probability is now secreted by his mother, Winney Brown, formerly the slave of Mr. JOHN MUIR, late of this town, but now said to be free. The above reward will be paid for securing said Negro BOB, in any goal, and a further reward of TEN DOLLARS for the discovery of those who have been accessary to his concealment.

BOB,

This lottery has been authoriſed by the legiſlature of Virginia, for the laudable purpoſe of erecting a ſeminary of learning in or near the metropolis of this ſtate. With this view, it is contemplated to raiſe 20,000 dollars, and 2,500 dollars in addition, for defraying the expences attendant on drawing the lottery. Citizens of the firſt reſpectability have been ſelected as truſtees, and they have pledged themſelves to uſe their utmoſt exertions to carry it into effect. The ſcheme has the advantage of giving to each adventurer, a chance for ſome very large prizes, whilſt the proportion of prizes to blanks, is ſo great as to invite the friends of the intended inſtitution to partake of the lottery, with very little riſk of their becoming looſers. The treaſurer of this ſtate is to be appointed to receive the money for the tickets as they are ſold, and to pay the amount of the prizes to the fortunate adventurers. It is believed that the above conſiderations will induce a rapid ſale of tickets and the drawing will commence as ſoon as a ſufficient number ſhall be ſold to authorize it—which it it believed will be on the ſecond Monday in December next.

Patent Corn Shelling Machine.

By virtue of authority in me placed by Thomas Burnham, one of the proprietors of the Corn Shelling Machine, invented by Paul Pilſbury of Newbury, State of Maſſachuſetts, I now offer for ſale in the State of Virginia and that part of the Diſtrict of Columbia weſt of the Potomac, the excluſive right to conſtruct, and authority to uſe, and vend to others to be uſed, this ſimple but very valuable Machine.

I will ſell a right to conſtruct a ſingle one, or I will ſell the right for any county in Virginia, ſo low as to make it an object to the purchaſer. It poſſeſſes every property moſt deſirable in a Machine, ſuch as durability, expedition, ſimplicity and ſo little labour in working it, that two men may eaſily ſhell one hundred buſhels per day. It takes ſo little from the cob that the corn does not require fanning as in the common method of threſhing.

Millers and Farmers who have large quantities of this grain to ſhell will find it much to their advantage to work this Machine by a horſe or by water, as one might be conſtructed at a ſmall additional expence to ſhell one hundred barrels per day. Any perſon wiſhing to ſee the performance of this Machine may be gratified by applying either at Wm. Hartſhorne's Store in Alexandria, or at his Mill three miles from town.

ROBERT HARTSHORNE.

Deſcription of the Sheling Machine.

IT conſiſts of a wooden frame for the cylinder to work in, 3 feet 5 inches long, 2 feet 7 inches in height.

A cylinder 24 inches diameter, and 17 inches long, of white oak, ſet with ſmall iron teeth to project out about 3-8 of an inch, interſected within 1 1-8 inch of each other to ſhell the corn with as the cylinder turns round.

A Gudgeon paſſing through the centre of the Cylinder for it to turn on, made of wood or iron.

A Crank to turn the Cylinder with, made of wood or iron. A ſemi-circular bottom under the Cylinder, made with wooden flats, ſet with ſmall iron teeth, interſected like thoſe in the Cylinder; the flats ſet ſo far apart as to let the ſhelled corn fall through into the receiver below.

A flat piece of wood placed at the top of the frame at one end to conduct the ears of corn in at one ſide of the Cylinder, which being ſhelled, the cobs paſs out at the other ſide. The ſide where the ears enter is half an inch wider than that where the cob is diſcharged.

Mr. Davis, Richmond, Mr. Green, Frederickſburg, and Mr. Bowen, at Wincheſter, are deſired to publiſh the above once a week for ten weeks in their reſpective papers.
